MAYOR'S ADDRESS.

Napanee, January 13th, 1913.

Gentlemen:—

You have been elected to represent the ratepayers and citizens to manage the affairs of the Municipal Corporation for the year 1913, and the burden you are now assuming as the legislative and administrative body for the Town is an honorable and onerous one if you are to perform your duties to the satisfaction of the citizens at large.
Each one of you have been appointed as a Chairman of one of the standing committees of the Council and if these several committees are to properly perform the respective duties which are assigned to them, it is necessary that they should work in harmony and that each Chairman should, before undertaking any new work or in reporting upon any particular matter which the Council has asked the Committee to get information upon, consult with the individual members of his committee in order that his reports may be full and complete and in order that the sessions of the Council itself may not be unduly prolonged.
As far as possible your reports should be reduced to writing and signed by the members of the committee. While the Council itself is responsible to the electors for the general policy of the Council, yet the several Committees are especially responsible to the same tribunal for the management and conduct of the particular matters which
are assigned to it.

The year 1913 is a very important year in the Town's history and the Council of 1913 has a very heavy financial burden to meet. The Council a couple of years ago undertook the construction of modern sewers based upon a complete sewerage system for the whole Municipality and

are assigned to it.

The year 1913 is a very important year in the Town's history and the Council of 1913 has a very heavy financial burden to meet. The Council a couple of years ago undertook the construction of modern sewers based upon a complete sewerage system for the whole Municipality and the Council of 1912 continued the construction of other sewers and also undertook the installation of sewage disposal works upon plans approved by the Provincial Board of Health. In addition to this cement walks have been constructed under the Local Improvement plan and other walks and other sewers must be constructed this year. In building these walks and sewers large financial obligations have been incurred and at the present time there are overdrafts in the several banks of the Town of many thousands of dollars. These loans from the banks must be paid off at once and it will be one of your early duties to devise means for the issuing of debentures to retire these current obligations and in whatever arrangement is made, care should be had to spread the term of your debenture issue over such period or periods, as may be the least onerous upon the ratepayers, having in mind, also, the preservation of the Municipal credit.

One of your first duties will be to appoint your auditor for the year and during the course of your term other appointments will have to be made. You should exercise great care in the selection of your officers for the responsibility of their work falls upon you.

The appointment of an Assessor will have to be made some time before July 1st as he begins his duties on that date. There have been various criticisms offered in respect to the assessment for many years and while it may be impossible to have any assessment made which is just and equitable in every particular, care should be taken in the selection of an Assessor and an early canvas should be made in order that a good man may be obtained who will accept the position at the salary which the Council is prepared to give. At present every Assessor is handicapped in the performance of this work more so for the reason that we have no assessment map of the Town. If we had a good map the assessment roll would become more systematic and intelligible and there would be less chance for errors to creep in. This question should receive your early attention and a report presented as to the cost.

Early in the year the budget will be laid before you by the Finance Committee. Each Committee should examine well the appropriation which is made for it and have in view the fact that the appropriation is made for the whole calendar year. A large proportion of the expenditures of the town are fixed and uncontrollable but the controllable portion should be scrutinized very carefully. The school rate promises to be large and it therefore behooves you to keep the general rate as low as possible, consistent with efficiency, in order that the tax payers may not be too heavily burdened.

Your watersystem and electric lighting system are under contract but it will be your duty to see that the Water Works Co., and the Electric Company are living up to their respective agreements with the Corporation.

The streets of the town will require a large sum to keep them in proper repair and special care should be had that as far as possible, the work, that is done upon the highways shall be of a high-class and permanent quality.

If the town is to grow and prosper

STRIVING FOR TI

Powers Are Working to Prevent a Rupture

The Ambassadors of the Nations Are Advising Moderation Warning Both Parties Plunging Europe Into Allies Are Having a Privilege For Territory.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—Sir Grey, the British Foreign and the ambassadors of the nations are making valiant efforts about a settlement between and the Balkan allies in view of peace. They have had several interviews with Dr. I. Rechad Pasha, the head of the garrison and Turkish delegates respectively, advising moderation both sides and warning of either party, if through obduracy should plunge Europe into a war which would incur a heavy weight of approval.

The meeting of the ambassadors yesterday was the lengthiest. They discussed the note sent to the Porte yesterday, aiming to meet every argument likely to be raised by the Turks.

Much is hoped for here from Pasha, the grand vizier, a great ability and extraordinary energy. He is perhaps the most influential among the Ottoman rulers. He has succeeded in restoring good relations between the triple entente and thus been able to prevent the possibility of an active anti-Turkish movement.

While progress towards a standstill here, the Balkan nations are endeavoring to secure advantages for themselves in view of the conquered territories of Bulgaria, Greece and Serbia are working actively their relatives and friends or thrones of Europe, to influence powers in favor of the claim countries. As the moment of decision approaches their effort more strenuous. It is known they have sent special envoys of the capitals to support of their regular diplomats.

The Greeks, unhampered by armistice which binds the others, are continuing the fight in Epirus, where even to-day, counters took place with the Turks. According to several despatches Premier Venizelos, the Greeks are doing their utmost to Janina. Their efforts are directed to the north, where they thus far have kept communication open and have been able to supply. It has been difficult to take the city by storm.

Scutari is even more in danger to hunger, because it is one of the greatest grain depots in the world and must have six months' supply on hand.

The Turkish delegates have taken steps to carry out their plan to leave London. Diplomatists think it would be a great mistake for any of the delegates to leave before another meeting of the conference was held, if only for the purpose of formally ending the negotiations. It might be construed as a sign of weakness, which is entirely out of the question, and to the British.

Governor Sulzer Says State Must Take Over Long Sault.

He Declares That the New York State Legislature Exceeded Its Powers
In Granting Charter to Corporation and Will Cancel Rights—Pays No
Attention to Effect of Dam on River Navigation.

ALBANY, N.Y., Jan. 14.—In a special message to the Legislature last night, Governor Sulzer recommended that the charter granted to the Long Sault Development Co. by the Legislature of 1907, be immediately repealed. Attorney-General Carmody reported to the Senate recently that in his opinion the Legislature exceeded its authority in granting the charter, the act being unconstitutional, and in this opinion, the governor concurs. He recommends, however, that the power be developed by the state for general distribution, and fails to consider the claim that such development may affect navigation.

The company was incorporated with a capital of $1,000,000, and its directors for the first year were: Michael H. Flaherty, Frank S. Smith, Henry H. Warren, Walter F. Willson and John C. Crapser. The corporation proposed to develop power from the St. Lawrence River, which, it is estimated, would amount to 1,000,000 horsepower if fully developed. The company has paid $35,000 into the state treasury, which the governor suggests be repaid to the company with interest.

The company has never begun operations because of its failure to get favorable legislation from the federal and Canadian Governments. A bill passed the U. S. Senate, but was defeated in the House of Representatives. Governor Sulzer said yesterday he was one of those who opposed the measure in Washington.

In the course of his message, Governor Sulzer said:

"The State of New York, in my opinion, is now committed to the policy of conserving all of its natural resources, and particularly of developing our vast water powers, so that they may be of benefit to all the people of the state."

"The Attorney-General, the State Conservation Commission, and myself are convinced that this act is void and unconstitutional, and that the appropriate action to be taken by the Legislature at this time is to repeal the said act."

"Not only is said act violative of the provisions of our state constitution, but its provisions are in other respects imprudent, unwise and indefensible, both from an industrial and an economical point of view."

"Investigations made by the engineers of the State Conservation Commission demonstrate, among other things, that a full economic development at the Long Sault Rapids will produce one million horse-power, of which, by treaty arrangement with Canada, it is to be expected that New York will receive no less than one-half. It is hard to conceive of the vastness of 500,000 horse-power, transmuted into electrical energy. It is nearly three-quarters of the sum total of all the water powers now developed in New York State, including that at Niagara. It is estimated to be more than sufficient to run one-third of all the industries of our state."

HOUSE OPENS TO-DAY

Hugh Guthrie Will Be First Speaker
In Naval Debate.

OTTAWA, Jan. 14.—The naval debate will be resumed to-day by Hugh Guthrie, and will probably continue for some time. Whether the Government will attempt to make it the only business of the session until disposed of, or is content with bringing it up on Government days, has not yet been definitely determined. Much interest attaches to Mr. Guthrie's speech, because it is expected that he will foreshadow the nature and extent of the Opposition. A great many other matters of public importance will have to be neglected if anything like the monopoly of the time of the House is given to the navy bill.

The Bank Act, for example, is interesting a great many members, and in this connection it is stated that a battle royal may be expected between Postmaster-General Lemieux and Sir Rodolphe Forget. It is also more than likely that the demand of the shareholders and depositors of the Farmers' Bank, for reimbursement by the Government will be brought before Parliament at any early date.

Very few members are in the city and if the Liberals have agreed upon a definite plan of Opposition to the naval bill, it had not yet been disclosed. The likelihood is that they will caucus upon the subject again within a few days.

She Did.

The young girl sat in her bedroom reading and waiting impatiently. Her older sister was entertaining a young man in the parlor, and she wanted to know how it would terminate. At last there was a sound in the hall, and a crash as of a closing door made it plain to the girl that the young man had gone. Throwing down her book, she ran to the head of the stairs and peered eagerly and intently into the blackness of the hall beneath.

"Well, Maude," she called, "did you land him?"

There was a peculiar silence, and then a masculine voice responded: "She did."—New York American.

ON, Jan. 14.—The British Telephone Co. is to pay to the National Telephone Co. of the United Kingdom of $62,576,320 in respect of the transfer of the company's system to the British Telephone Co. according to a decision handed by the Railway and Commission, sitting as a court of appeal. The whole of the telephones in the British Isles passed into the hands of the National Telephone Co. on Jan. 1, 1912. The National Telephone Co. originally claimed $100,000,000 for its interests, but the trial just ended, which lasted for 100 days, this claim was reduced to any millions by way of agreement into electrical energy. It is nearly three-quarters of the sum total of all the water powers now developed in New York State, including that at Niagara. It is estimated to be more than sufficient to run one-third of all the industries of our state now operated by steam.

"At present it is reported as practicable to transmit power from the Long Sault Rapids to New York City for steady continuous loads much cheaper than such loads can now be carried by steam power. This will inevitably result in a great saving to the consumer, and of inestimable value to the state.

"In order that we secure for all our citizens the many and the lasting beneficial results of the proper development of our natural resources, particularly of our now unused water powers, in accordance with our constructive policy in these matters, to which our state now stands committed, I respectfully recommend that chapter 355 of the laws of 1907—the Long Sault Development Co.'s charter—be immediately repealed."

Judge Archbald Pays Penalty of Corruption In Office.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Robt. W. Archbald of Scranton, Pa., for twenty-nine years an occupant of judicial positions upon the Pennsylvania state bench, the federal district bench and the U. S. Commerce Court, was yesterday adjudged guilty by the Senate of "high crimes and misdemeanors," was stripped of his office and forever disqualified from holding positions of public honor or public trust.

In a little committee room off the gallery floor, behind a guarded door, Judge Archbald, his wife and his son, Hugh, sat throughout the afternoon as the Senate voted upon the charges against him.

The first vote of conviction was carried to him by his son from the gallery. After sentence had been imposed upon him Judge Archbald and his family left the capital to go at once to the family home at Scranton.

"I have always known that I have done no wrong, and the vote of no one makes it otherwise," was his only comment upon the Senate's action.

LOSS IS ONE MILLION.

Damage In Burns' Fire In Calgary Covered by Insurance.

CALGARY, Alta., Jan. 14.—The losses arising out of the destruction of the stock and buildings of P. Burns packing plant Sunday will total approximately $1,000,000, said Manager Black yesterday. This is fully covered by insurance. The company lost 4,000 carcasses, but are able to take care of their business just the same, as they have a large herd of cattle in close proximity to Calgary.

The fire is still burning, and it is feared the slaughter house may now be consumed with thousands of barrels of lard in addition to much expensive machinery.

OTTAWA, Jan. 14.—The adjournment for two months more of the hearing before the Dominion Railway Commission of the western freight rates case has occasioned comment and is interpreted as meaning that the transportation problem is to be shelved this session of Parliament. The case has been pending before the Railway Commission for nearly a year. The recent adjournment was procured by the counsel for the Government, who will undertake to establish a schedule of rates for the west which will be more reasonable than those now in force. In short the Government is endeavoring to have readjusted the western freight rates.

For The Nervous Woman,

Or the woman who experiences hot flashes nothing is so good to soothe, quiet and calm the nervous system as a pure glyceric extract of native medical plants, and made without alcohol, which has been sold by druggists for the past forty years, and most favorably known as Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. In younger years some women suffer from dizziness, or fainting spells, hysteria, headache, bearing-down feelings and pain. All these symptoms of irregularity and female disturbance are relieved by the use of this famous "Prescription" of Doctor Pierce.

As a powerful, invigorating tonic "Favorite Prescription" imparts strength to the whole system, and in particular to the organs distinctly feminine. For over-worked, "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," house-keepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, it is an excellent appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

"My disease was called retroversion," writes Mrs. LYDIA McDONALD, of Mecosta, Mich., Route 1. "I had nervous chills and numb spells and they would leave me very weak. Then I had inflammation and the doctor said I had a floating kidney. I doctored seven months with our family physician. He said I would have to have an operation. Then I stopped taking his medicine. After taking three bottles of Dr. Pierce's medicine I have not had any nervous chills or weak spells. I am better than for years."

"My daughter is now taking the 'Prescription' and Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, also the 'Pellets' for nervousness and weak, tired feeling. These remedies have helped her ever so much in a short time. We have great faith in your medicines for female troubles."

A DROP IN THE BUCKET

CANADA'S CONTRIBUTION WILL BE LOST IN BRITAIN'S HUGE SURPLUSES.

Ottawa, January 10th, 1913.

During seven years of Liberal administration in England the British national debt has been reduced by £63,000,000 according to a statement recently made by Lloyd George, the Chancellor of the Commons. This means a reduction of debt of about $45,000,000 a year, or $10,000,000 a year more than the Borden "emergency" donation. In addition to this during the past three years the British Government has provided for an extra expenditure of £13,500,000 on the navy over and above the ordinary programme of shipbuilding, dock construction, etc.—an extra expenditure in three years of $67,500,000, or almost twice the amount of the Borden gift, which will take, at least, three years to turn into ships. And during the same time the British Government has paid its enormous naval expenditure completely out of current revenue, while the other European nations, and notably Germany, have financed their armament creation out of loans.

Canada's thirty-five millions will not cut a very imposing figure beside these huge sums, but even that will have to be financed by a loan, because even if for the sake of political effect it may be taken out of revenue, it will mean that the Government must increase its borrowing in other directions so that the result will be the same. The $35,000,000 will be borrowed in England, a cheque handed over to the British Admiralty and then be followed by yearly tribute of interest to English capitalists.

If there is such an emergency that Mr. Borden must rush to borrow $35,000,000 to save the Empire, how is it that the British Government has not also discovered the emergency, and instead of using its immense surplus funds to meet it goes steadily along using the money to pay off debts while as steadily continuing its permanent naval policy?

The more this emergency talk is analyzed the more palpable is the truth of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's statement in Parliament that the Empire has not to face an emergency but a permanent condition. Sir Wilfrid proposes to join in facing that condition along British lines by creating a new force—a Canadian navy of real

NATURAL DEVELOPMENT.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's proposition for two fleet units, one for the Atlantic and one for the Pacific, has been criticised by the Tories as in advance of his own policy of 1910 and his position at previous Imperial Conferences. The criticisms illustrate the contrast between the torpid Conservatism of the true Tory and the progressive instincts of Liberalism. Sir Wilfrid's resolution of 1909, which preceded his naval construction programme, set forth "This House fully recognizes the duty of the people of Canada as they increase in numbers and wealth to assume in larger measure the responsibility of national defence." Since 1909 Canada's wealth has increased enormously—under the policy formed and bequeathed by the Liberals—and her trade has grown by leaps and bounds until this year it is around the billion dollar mark. Naturally Sir Wilfrid has progressed with the times. His naval programme of 1912 bears the same proportion to the national resources as did that of 1909. The Tories have not yet found any policy except to prevent the constructive work of the Liberals from going on.

CHURCHILL vs. BORDEN.

Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill, in the Imperial Parliament, March 20th, 1912—"Britain's most urgent need at the present time is an increase in the number of her torpedo destroyers."

Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden in the Canadian Parliament, December 5th, 1912—"The total cost of three such battle ships, which when launched, will be the most powerful in the world, will be approximately $35,000,000, and we ask the people of Canada through their Parliament to grant that sum to His Majesty the King of Great Britain and Ireland and of the Overseas Dominions, in order to increase the effective naval forces of the Empire, etc."

Evidently Mr. Borden understands Britain's needs better than the First Lord of the Admiralty.

WANTED AN EMERGENCY.

Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill in the Imperial Parliament, March 20th, 1912—"Our position at the present time is a thoroughly satisfactory one and I do not think there is any chance of its becoming unsatisfactory in the future."

Yet when Hon. Mr. Borden arrived in England a few months later he was loaded up with "emergency" and demanded a $35,000,000 cheque as what the Mother Country needed for immediate effective aid to tide over that emergency.

Perhaps it is fortunate for Great Britain that it is deprived of the services of such a naval expert as Mr.

official despatch to H. R. H. the Governor-General January 8th "Mr. Asquith and I had subsequently several conversations with him (Premier Borden) at which he expressed the desire that the Canadian and other Dominion Ministers who might be in London as members of the Committee of Imperial Defence should receive in confidence knowledge of the policy and proceeding of the Imperial Government in foreign and other affairs. We pointed out to him that the Committee Imperial Defence is a purely advisory body and is not, and cannot, under any circumstances become a body to decide on policy, which is and must remain the sole prerogative of the Cabinet, subject to the support of the House of Commons."

Premier Borden has repeatedly emphasized that his price for a permanent naval policy of co-operation with the Imperial Government is that the Canadian Government should have "A voice in shaping the policies of peace or war."

The Imperial Secretary of State for the Colonies emphatically declares that this is matter of "policy" and must remain the sole prerogative of the Cabinet, subject to the support of the House of Commons."

Nothing could be more definite. Mr. Borden is specifically denied a voice as to policy which he demands before venturing upon a permanent policy.

There is only one answer. To be consistent he cannot produce a permanent policy—probably he does not want to. That must mean the perpetuation of the Nationalist-Tory compromise of a contribution as a species of permanent naval tribute.

Mr. Borden proposes to ignore the condition and defer his Cabinet troubles by emphasizing an old Tory condition—increased in Canada's national debt.

"SPEEDY" vs. "IMMEDIATE"

On March 20th, 1909, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, after pointing out in his famous naval resolution that the time had come when Canada as it increased in wealth and numbers should assume in larger measure the responsibility of national defence, proceeded—"that this House will cordially approve of any necessary expenditure designed to promote the organization of a Canadian Naval Service in co-operation with and in close relation to the Imperial navy. ALONG THE LINES SUGGESTED BY THE ADMIRALTY AT THE LAST IMPERIAL CONFERENCE." This was warmly approved by Mr. Borden, then Leader of the Opposition, so much so that he wanted to hurry things up. He was accommodated by Sir Wilfrid, who amended his resolution to read "To promote the SPEEDY organization of a Canadian Naval Service, etc." and Mr. Borden led the Opposition in unanimously concurring with that resolution.

No time was lost in acting upon it. The Naval Bill was presented next year providing for the "speedy" construction of a powerful nucleus for the eventual Canadian fleet. Tenders were called and the contract could have been awarded before the 21st of September, 1911, in full accordance with the will of Parliament and the people, but in view of the coming election Sir Wilfrid Laurier, with his customary strict interpretation of constitutional ethics, considered it proper to wait until the people had spoken.

The change of Government followed; but what became of "speedy" Mr. Borden? The practical naval programme he had demanded in 1909, reposed under the dust of a Cabinet pigeon hole. The tenders were left unheeded although their preparation had entailed great expense and labour.

Then "speedy" Mr. Borden had an inspiration. After lying in the Torres Vedras of indecision and the dispute between Nationalists and Tories he in 1912 underwent a transformation. The chrysalis "speedy" bloomed out into the butterfly "immediate." Charged with this momentous word Mr. Borden sailed away to England, listened to what the British Admiralty had said; forgot that the Laurier naval plan had been specifically agreed to by himself as to be "Along the lines suggested by the Admiralty at the last Naval Conference." And after listening to the British Ministers he calmly asked them what he should best do to give "immediate" effective aid. Naturally the Admiralty gave the answer he had put into their mouths—although they emphasized his express limitation—and back came Mr. Borden loaded down with his "immediate" solatium. And the immediate result was that the Hon. Mr. Monk resigned his portfolio, while the plan was denounced by Nationalists out of office and swallowed whole by the Parliamentary Nationalists who preferred portfolios and indemnities to constancy.

The "speedy" political acrobat in Opposition had no difficulty turning a somersault into the "immediate" figure juggler after over a year's vacillation. It should not be difficult for plain taxpayers to judge which was the better—the "speedy" follower of the Laurier policy of the Canadian navy or the "immediate" destroyer of the Laurier policy and inventor of the cheque donation expedient.

loaded up with emergency aid—demanded a $35,000,000 cheque as what the Mother Country needed for immediate effective aid to tide over that emergency.

Perhaps it is fortunate for Great Britain that it is deprived of the services of such a naval expert as Mr. Borden on the Admiralty.

CENTRALIZATION OR RESPONSIBLE GOVERNMENT.

Hon. Sydney Fisher at Granby, Que., January 3rd, 1913 "To-day we are at the parting of the ways. If the Conservative idea of centralization wins, good by to the future growth of the British Empire, good-by to responsible Government in Canada. We want responsible Government and not the centralization and depotism of Tory cranks."

NO EMERGENCY HERE.

Hon. Dr. Roche has been appointed Chairman of a Cabinet Committee to consider the question of amendments to the Civil Service Act, following Sir George Murray's report. The first work of the Committee might be to follow Sir George's advice and place the Outside Service under the Civil Service Commission—and again it might not. When the Senate is reformed by some more of Mr. Borden's "discredited politicians" and the Civil Service is crammed with Tory camp followers, it will be time enough to consider other reforms. Meanwhile every day witnesses fresh batches of dismissals in different parts of the country.

A typical case is reported from Yarmouth, N. S., where Mrs. M. C. Godet, Postmistress of West Pubnico, was summarily dismissed, although she had efficiently and faithfully performed the duties of her office for forty-nine years, under both Tory and Liberal administrations, without complaint. She could hardly have been a political partisan, so it may fairly be assumed that some political partisan wanted her job, and got it.

CONTRIBUTION WILL BE PERMANENT.

Rt. Hon. Mr. Borden, in House of Commons, December 5th, 1912, introducing his naval contribution proposition—"No thoughtful man can fail to realize that very complex and difficult questions confront those who believe that we must find a basis of permanent co-operation in naval defence, and that any such basis must afford to the Overseas Dominions an adequate voice in the moulding and control of foreign policy."

And again "I have alluded to the difficulty of finding an acceptable basis upon which the Great Dominions co-operating with the Mother Country in defence can receive and assert an adequate voice in the control and moulding of foreign policy. I am assured by His Majesty's Government that, pending a final solution of the question of voice and influence, they would welcome the presence in London of a Canadian Minister during the whole or portion of each year."

Brantford Expositor—An edict has gone forth in British dramatic and music hall circles, that the word "damn" and similar expletives must be eliminated from all performances. Brantford Expositor—The proprietors of a large sawmill at Victoria, B. C., have decided to discharge all of the 90 Hindus in their employ and destroy the shacks which they have been occupying. The decision is said to have been arrived at on account of evidence that in order to retain their jobs the Hindus have been in the habit of giving bribes to certain officials. That it would be much fairer to discharge the corrupt officials is something that does not seem to have struck the company.

Charlottetown Guardian—There are unimproved and waste lands in many parts of the Province held by absentee owners or by moneyed owners in the Province and on which the tax paid is a mere bagatelle. There are many at home and abroad who would willingly work these lands and make them a valuable asset to the Province, but who cannot get them. A way should be opened up by which these lands could be made available to those who are willing to work them. The only remedy for this is to place a special tax on unimproved lands, a tax which will make it unprofitable for the owners to keep them in their present unimproved state, a tax which will compel them either to sell or to work their farms.

OUR POLYGLOT PRESS.

Many Languages Stand In the Way of Canada's Literature.

"The great hindrance to Canada's literature," a literary friend of mine the other day remarked, "is the fact that we are a bilingual nation. Look at Belgium, for example, there you have a bilingual nation, and just think what years it took her to produce a Maeterlinck."

I replied by alluding with patriotic pride to our noble array of writers, already a goodly host, and wound up by stating my firm belief that we were big enough to support two or even three languages under the same flag.

"My dear fellow," was his answer, "you say 'two or even three languages.' Have you any idea in how many languages publications are issued in Canada?"

Not being a walking encyclopaedia, I had to answer negatively, and that was his chance. He simply douched me under a shower bath of facts. And when I recovered my breath and was able to reappear again in the world at large, I had some of the following ideas on our polyglot press:

First of all, of course, at the present time, there are more English dailies, weeklies and monthlies than French; but the French are by no means a bad second. Quebec issues about 88 publications in its provincial language, Ontario has eight French or semi-French newspapers, Manitoba has three, New Brunswick two, and Prince Edward Island and Alberta one each.

Besides English and French, newspapers are published in the following languages in Canada: Slavic, Japanese, Chinese, Icelandic, German, Polish, Swedish, Ruthenian, Magyar, Danish, Finnish, Hebrew and Italian. Spanish and Russian seem to be the only two major European languages unrepresented.

However, with our fifteen printed tongues we do pretty well. Nova Scotia and the Yukon press are the only two provinces that can claim pure, uncontaminated English. The Acadians have left, it would seem, no vestige of their language in the modern printed paper in the land of Evangeline, while it must be admitted that the Yukon only runs three news-sheets.

Quebec is, of course, more French than English, Montreal being the centre of the French publishing world just as Toronto is of the English. New Brunswick is practically pure English, Shediac with its "Moniteur Acadien," and Moncton with its "Evangeline," alone varying the English. Ontario produces more printed matter than the rest of Canada, and it is practically all English, with a mild sprinkling of French and German, a Danish paper, "Danebrog," at Ottawa, and the "Tyokansa," a Finnish publication at Port Arthur.

The farther west we go, of course, where the most recent immigrants have located, the more varied becomes this Babel Tower of tongues. Manitoba has a French patch at St. Boniface; otherwise its second printed tongue is easily Icelandic, Winnipeg alone producing five publications in this language. British Columbia is pure English with the exception of some Oriental newspapers such as the "Tai-Hon-Yat-Bo" (Chinese), and the "Tairika-Nippo" (Japanese), of Vancouver. Of the newer provinces Alberta is evidently German, and Saskatchewan very English, as it has only three foreign papers.—Bernard Muddiman in Canadian Courier.

MOTHERHOOD SUGGESTIONS

Advice to Expectant Mothers

The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and marks distinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or understands how to properly care for herself. Of course nearly every woman nowadays has medical treatment at such times, but many approach the experience with an organism unfitted for the trial of strength, and when it is over her system has received a shock from which it is hard to recover. Following right upon this comes the nervous strain of caring for the child, and a distinct change in the mother results.

There is nothing more charming than a happy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-birth under the right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty. The unexplainable thing is that, with all the evidence of shattered nerves and broken health resulting from an unprepared condition, and with ample time in which to prepare, women will persist in going blindly to the trial.

Every woman at this time should rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

ANOTHER TREASURE.

British Museum Receives a Fine
Theban "Book of the Dead."

The already well-endowed collection of Egyptian papyri in the British Museum has received an important addition in the gift by Mrs. Mary Greenfield of a magnificent Theban version of the Book of the Dead of the period of the New Empire, 1000 B.C. It contains several unknown literary compositions, hymns, litanies and services, and measures 123 feet in length and 18 inches in width.

It was discovered in the late '70's of the last century in the hiding place of the royal mummies at Deir-el-Bahari, and the writer was a woman named Mesi-ta-nebt Asheru—"She who belongs to the Lady of Asher," that is, the goddess Mut of Thebes. She was a princess, the daughter of the last priest king of the twenty-first dynasty, Painsthem II. by his niece, the grand priestess queen, Nesi-Khensu, a lady who held the highest sacred and secular offices. The mummified forms of the princess, her father and mother are still in the Cairo Museum.

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

SOME men are willing that their wives should make their own clothes and pay for their husbands'.

No girl thinks any man is perfect, but she pretends to do so when she marries to help the poor fellow along.

If you want to be a good taffy giver it is up to you to learn to make a good sort.

The man who had to take sulphur and molasses every spring during his boyhood isn't yearning for the good old times to that extent.

It isn't hard to ride a hobby after you learn how, but the learning sometimes gives a hard fall.

The girl who bakes the best bread doesn't always get the most auto rides.

One may not believe in signs and yet be averse to getting thirteen bills in one day.

The older the joke the better—if it is really a joke.

It takes true courage for a woman to go to a party in last season's gown.

A woman's idea of being generous is to take her dearest enemy out in her brand new high priced coupe.

A Substitute.

Is this war?
You ask breathlessly
As you gaze
In a daze
On the way
That they play,
No, my dear sir
(Or, if dear,
My dear miss),
This
Is only football.
That's all.
In war, you know,
A man has a show.
They stand a mile away
For gun play,
And only a small per cent
Must be sent
To the hospital.
Some survive
And are alive
For years,
With eyes and ears
Intact.
For a fact,
Who play the war game.
But
He is a lucky mutt
Who
Can play a season through
At football
And come out all
There—
Fingers, eyes, nose and hair.
In football
They do not stand
In their places
A mile apart and
Make faces
Or lie low.
No;
They mix,
And they mix
Good and plenty.

Wild Bison Herd Found.

Harry V. Radford, the explorer, has discovered more than 350 wild buffalo in the Slave Lake district of the Hudson Bay country, probably the only herd of wild bison in the world.

Outside of a few collections of domesticated bison, there are no known living specimens of the buffalo in the country and the last wild herd in Canada is believed to have been exterminated. For many years reports have come out of the Hudson Bay country concerning the existence of a new and distinct species of buffalo, but only within the last ten years have scientists agreed that this species is a different variety from the American bison.

One of the herd, killed by Mr. Radford, weighed 2,400 pounds and the skull and skeletons were very massive specimens, larger and broader in every way than any of the prairie bison skeletons.

GLASS IS PECULIAR.

It Has a Number of Curious and Contradictory Qualities.

Glass is one of the most interesting as well as one of the most peculiar things in the world. It has curious and contradictory qualities, and many astonishing phenomena are connected with it. Brittle and breakable as it is, yet it exceeds almost all other bodies in elasticity.

If two glass balls are made to strike each other at a given force the recoil, by virtue of their elasticity, will be nearly equal to their original impetus. Connected with its brittleness are some very singular facts.

Take a hollow sphere with a hole and stop the hole with the finger, so as to prevent the external and internal air from communicating, and the sphere will fly to pieces by the mere heat of the hand. Vessels made of glass that have been suddenly cooled possess the curious property of being able to resist hard blows given to them from without, but will be instantly shivered by a small particle of flint dropped into their cavities. This property seems to depend upon the comparative thickness of the bottom; the thicker the bottom is the more certainty of breakage by this experiment. Some of these vessels, it is stated, have resisted the stroke of a mallet given with sufficient force to drive a nail into wood, and heavy bodies, such as iron, bits of wood, Jasper, stone, etc., have been cast into them from a height of two or three feet without any effect, yet a fragment of flint not larger than a pea dropped from a height of three inches has made them fly.

New Recipe Book.

For the housekeeper there is a cloth bound blank book with indexed edges, planned for recipes. It is priced at 75 cents, and just at this season, when one is newly opening up one's home and gathering all odds and ends together, it will undoubtedly prove of much use, for old recipes may be copied into it and clippings pasted in, and many odds and ends of paper so cleared out.

sacred and secular offices. The mummified forms of the princess, her father and mother are still in the Cairo Museum.

The way in which the author has selected the chapters from the older Theban version of the Book of the Dead shows a thorough knowledge of the theology of the period, and the beauty of the hymns and litanies to Osiris, Atem and Harmachis shows the mind of a pious and highly educated person.

The whole of the huge papyrus is clearly in one handwriting, a rather small feminine hand, and we learn from it that the lady held the title of "Worker or Maker of the Rolls (books) of Amen-Ra, King of the Gods." She was also a musician, being called "Singer of the Quarter of Mut Lady of Asher." In addition, she was a priestess of Amen and "Chief Lady of the Ladies of Amen-Ra"—that is, head of the female section of the confraternity of the great Theban god.

Reports have reached London of the discovery, near Luxor, Egypt, of a tomb, which contained one of the most valuable collections of pre-dynastic implements and ornaments ever found. The tomb contained the dried-up remains of a man lying in the semi-embryonic position.

As the Neolithic Egyptians did not embalm their dead, the body was nearly crumbled up from the weight of a stone slab which had been dislodged from its position as the covering of the tomb. With the body were found a unique double-edged bronze sword in such an excellent state of preservation that the cutting-edge remains sharp, several long arrow heads, also in bronze; two gold hair rings and a lot of the well-known pre-dynastic pottery.

The tomb was probably that of one of the warriors of the first dynasty, during which period the use of bronze was discovered in Upper Egypt. According to this theory the body is about six thousand years old.

Mufflers For Aeroplanes.

Recent experiments with a muffling box on board an aeroplane, made near Paris, proved successful. The great noise of the motor ordinarily lessens the comfort in flying and fatigues the pilot as well as causes annoyance to passengers. In military work the noise prevents the officers from hearing sounds which come from the ground, and these would often be a useful factor in observations. Pilots cannot use their voices to any extent. Another point is that were the motor silent running the observers could hear sound signals coming from the ground and could also return signals by using trumpets of different pitch or sirens as are used on vessels. The test took place before a military commission, and during the flights it is said that the noise of the motor was so much reduced as to allow the pilot, Labouret, to speak to the persons on the ground when he was flying at 300 feet. The muffler box does not over-heat owing to the strong air cooling which it receives. The loss of power is below 2 per cent., as shown by measurements.

Utilizing Odd Pieces of Chiffon.

Bits of chiffon of various colors and shades, no one of which is large enough for any use, may be saved and collected until there is sufficient to make a waist after they have all been dyed dark blue or black, or if a good many pieces are of white these may be dyed flesh color, which is so much used on all transparent gowns. Satins may also be treated in the same way, thereby utilizing many old gowns to form one or two new black ones.

And they mix
Good and plenty.

His Mistake.

"In taking his second wife he thought he would do something smart and solve the servant girl problem."

"How did he do it?"

"Married the hired girl."

"Great idea."

"Yes, in theory. In practice it didn't work out. He discovered about the second day what was her main reason for marrying him."

LONG HAired MEN.

They Caused a Vigorous Protest in Massachusetts in 1649.

The following protest signed by Joseph Endicott, governor; Thomas Dudley, deputy governor; Richard Bellingsham, Richard Saltonstall, Increase Nowell, William Hibbins, Thomas Flint, Robert Bridges and Simon Bradstreet was published in Massachusetts in 1649:

"Protest, against wearing long hair, of the governor, etc., of Massachusetts:

"Forasmuch as the wearing of long hair, after the manner of Russians and barbarous Indians, has begun to invade New England, contrary to the rule of God's word, which says it is a shame for men to wear long hair, as also the commendable custom generally of all the godly of all our nation, until within these few years:

"We, the magistrates, who have signed this paper, for the shewing of our own innocence in this behalf, do declare and manifest our dislike and detestation against the wearing of such long hair, as against a thing uncivil and unmanly, whereby men doe deforme themselves and offend sober and modest men and doe corrupt good manners. We doe therefore earnestly treat all the elders of this jurisdiction, as often as they shall see cause, to manifest their zeal against it in their public administrations, and to take care that the members of their respective churches be not defiled therewith; that so, such as prove obstinate, and will not reforme themselves, may have God and man to witness against them. The third month 10th day, 1649."

The Stranger.

A stranger knocked at a man's door and told him of a fortune to be made.

"Um!" said the man. "It appears that considerable effort will be involved."

"Oh, yes," said the stranger; "you will pass many sleepless nights and toilsome days!"

"Um!" said the man. "And who are you?"

"I am called Opportunity."

"Um!" said the man. "You call yourself Opportunity, but you look like hard work to me."

And he slammed the door.—Pittsburgh Post.

Frenzied Arithmetic.

Three-year-old Amy, who had a very lively little brother, was being put through a lesson in arithmetic by her uncle. She had successfully added one and one, but stuck at two and one.

"Your mamma," said her uncle, "has two children. If she had one more what would that make?"

"Oh," cried Amy, "that would make my mamma cwozy!"—Woman's Home Companion.

Dr. Hennequin's Infant Tablets saved our little girl's life. Three doctors said she could not live. The Tablets cured her.—Mr. E. R. McBRIDE, Napanee, Ont.

I was given a sample package of three Hennequin Tablets; we used them; I saw a change at once. We secured the Tablets and our baby improved every day, and is now a bright, fat, good natured boy; you could not believe he was the same child. They certainly cured my baby and saved his life. I believe them to be the best medicine ever sold for babies. Mothers if your babies are not well take my advice and try these Tablets.—Mrs. JAMES RIDDELL, Barrydale, Ont.

COMFORTED THE LADIES.

A Marshal of France Who Was a Hero,
a Gallant and a Dandy.

Blaise de Montluc was a soldier and a marshal of France who fought through half the sixteenth century. Like a true Gascon, as he was, he added to his great physical qualities courage, high spirits and unquenchable gaiety.

In the Italian wars Blaise de Montluc commanded the defense of Sienna during a prolonged siege. When the town was reduced to a few ounces of bread daily Blaise was overcome with sickness and had himself carried about in a chair muffled up in furs.

But perceiving that the inhabitants, especially the women, were "thus rendered apprehensive of their fate should he die"—so runs an excerpt from De Montluc's "Commentaries"—"he called for a pair of crimson velvet breeches laid over with gold lace, very finely cut, for they were made at a time when he was forsooth in love. He put on a doublet of the same and a shirt of crimson silk and gold twist, then a buff collar over which he put his arms, very finely gilt."

"He was at that time wearing gray and white "in honor of a fair lady to whom he was a servant when he had leisure." So he put on a hat of gray silk with a gray silver hatband and a plume of heron's feathers set with silver spangles.

He also put on a short cassock of gray velvet garnished with "little plates of silver at two fingers' distance from one another and lined with cloth of silver, all open between the plates."

Then he "rubbed his face with Greek wine till he brought a little color into his cheeks and drank a small draught with a little bit of bread.

"He then looked at himself in the glass, strutted before his officers, though he had not the strength to kill a chicken, and rode through the town to the great comfort of all beholders."

Referred to the Finance Committee to report at next meeting.

A by-law was passed appointing John G. Fennell and John T. Grange, auditors, at a salary of $30.00 each.

A by-law was passed authorizing the Mayor and Treasurer to borrow from the Merchants Bank a sum of money not to exceed $10,000 for a period of three months at a rate of 5 per cent. interest. Whatever money is required for current expenditure will be used from this amount.

A by-law was passed appointing Dr. E. Ming, V. S., a member of the Board of Education for a term of three years.

A by-law was passed appointing W. S. Herrington, K. C., town solicitor for the year 1913, at a salary of $100.00.

Moved by Reeve Osborne, seconded by Coun. Graham, that Councillors Dickinson and Carson, together with the mover of the motion, be a committee to take up with Col. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, the question of having a drill hall established at Napanee. Carried.

Coun. Walters expressed the opinion that the council should take up the question of a boat service for Napanee. The town would profit by a good boat service from bay ports into Napanee.

Moved by Coun. Walters, seconded by Coun. Simpson, that Mayor Steacy appoint a committee for the purpose specified by Coun. Walters. Carried.

Mayor Steacy appointed Councillors Walters, Alexander and Graham.

The following interim appropriations were made to the several committees:

AN OLD PROPHECY BEING FULFILLED

Modern Irrigation Is Fulfilling Bible Predictions.

Pastor Russell at Washington Temple —Discusses Second Text Quoted on Union Depot Portals—Millennium Is Beginning, He Avers—Greater Blessings To Follow Shortly.

PASTOR RUSSELL

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—Pastor Russell preached this afternoon at the Temple, corner 13th street and New York avenue, to a large audience. He made the rather startling declaration that the Millennium is already here, that chronology proves that we have been living under some of its blessings for the past thirty-eight years; and that our modern conveniences and progress are attributable to the beginning of the rolling away of the curse, and the substitution of the Divine blessing.

The Pastor said that the reign of Messiah for a thousand years not only will bind Satan and hinder his further deception of mankind, but will also bring light, knowledge, illumination, to every corner of the earth. He pointed out the beginning of these blessings as already with us; but they are only the faint dawnings of the greater light which will flood the world, when the Sun of Righteousness, Emmanuel's Kingdom, shall be manifested above the horizon.

The speaker went on to say that immediately before us is a terrific storm which will convulse the present order of things—social, financial, political and religious. The momentary chaos will yield to the Prince of Peace, who will then take to Himself His great power and reign. He will say to the billowy waves of trouble, "Peace, be still," and there will be a calm, even as was illustrated on the Sea of Galilee.

Pastor Russell showed that the storm of trouble which will precede the establishment of Messiah's Kingdom will be the natural result of the operation of the laws of Justice. This principle always operates along the line of cause and effect. Humanity are not using the wonderful blessings of the present as they should. Selfishness prevails amongst rich and poor. The earth's abundant supply for the needs of all is bringing discontent, because the naural heart is full of selfishness, depravity.

God will allow selfishness to lead on to its inevitable result, and thus will demonstrate to mankind the sinfulness of sin, selfishness, meanness, and the beauty of holiness, righteousness, harmony with God.

"The Desert Shall Blossom."

The Pastor then called attention to Isaiah 35, the first verse of which declares, "The desert shall rejoice and blossom as the rose." He showed that irrigation is literally fulfilling this prophecy and bringing about marvellous results. Our Government is co-operating with our intelligent fellow-citizens to reclaim what was once

MONTREAL MARKET.

MONTREAL, Jan. 13.—There continues to be a good demand from European sources for Manitoba wheat, but buyers have not been disposed to follow the advance in prices on this side, consequently bids today in most cases were from 1c to 2c per bushel out of line, and the business was much quieter. The foreign demand for Manitoba barley is good, and sales of several loads were made. There was no improvement in the demand from local buyers for coarse grains. A fair local trade is doing flour. Demand for millfeed is fair. Butter and cheese quiet. Eggs active. Dressed hogs strong at an advance of 25c, with a good demand.

Corn—American, No. 2 yellow, 65c. Oats—Canadian western, No. 2, 42c to 42½c; Canadian western, No. 3, 40c to 40½c; extra No. 1 feed, 41c to 41½c; No. 2 local white, 39c; No. 3 local white, 38c; No. 4 local white, 37c. MONTREAL, Jan. 13.—At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market the receipts of live stock for the week ending Jan. 11 were 1500 cattle, 1900 sheep and lambs, 2200 hogs and 350 calves. Altho the supply of cattle was somewhat larger than a week ago, a firmer feeling prevailed in the market. This was attributed to the increased demand from local butchers, packers and outside buy-

LIVERPOOL LIVE STOCK.

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 13.—John Rogers & Co. cable that there is no change to report in the Birkenhead market today, and last week's quotations still rule, viz., 12c to 13½c per pound for Irish steers.

Antiquity of Porto Rico.

Ethnologists have reason for thinking that Porto Rico and the adjoining islands may have been peopled from the valley of the Orinoco instead of from Yucatan. When first occupied by man Porto Rico may have been a part of a peninsula connected with South America. Its fauna and flora are of the South American type, and it contains relics of a forgotten race which show evidence of a high grade of culture. Few traces of these aborigines are now to be found except in the interior of the island. Among the curious remains are stone inclosed plazas on which ceremonial dances were performed. The remains of carved idols and pottery show no small degree of skill and taste. No traces of stone buildings resembling those of the Mayas are found, but the houses are of the South American type. The manner of disposing of the dead also resembled that practiced in the valley of the Orinoco.

Motion Pictures as Detectives.

Through a Paris contemporary we learn of a novel method adopted by the Prague police authorities to detect the perpetrators of high crimes and misdemeanors. But whether the project will prove a success remains to be seen. When a person of distinction in the annals of crime is being sought and the police experience difficulty in laying hands upon the suspect, in future they will send to every cinematograph exhibition in Bohemia a photograph of the person "wanted." During the entertainment the picture will be shown with some little explanatory note, and at the conclusion each member of the audience will be free to act as an amateur detective. It seems very likely that this method will be fruitful in actions for damages.—London Globe.

Care of the Eyes.

On rising in the morning the eyes should be bathed gently in cold water. Twenty passes are said to be decidedly strengthening. While using them closely they should be rested at intervals of an hour or two, for the strain of constant reading, etc., is like that of extending the arms at a certain height immovably. Imagine, then, the taxing of the eyes, which cannot complain save after years of irreparable neglect. When dust settles in the eyes warm water will soothe them of any inflammation.

blossom as the rose." He showed that irrigation is literally fulfilling this prophecy and bringing about marvellous results. Our Government is co-operating with our intelligent fellow-citizens to reclaim what was once supposed to be worthless land.

A similar work of reclamation is going on in Arabia. Shortly the land of the "Arabian Nights" will realize in a natural way changes far more wonderful than those of the fairy tales which entranced our childish imaginations. The great Sahara Desert, also, has been examined by engineers, who have ascertained that much of it lies below sea level. At comparatively small cost, it can be inundated and brought to a high state of cultivation. The speaker also said that the Scriptures prophesy that the Dead Sea will one day be connected with the ocean.

Still More Wonderful Things.

Pastor Russell then applied Isaiah 33:3 to our day, and declared that he is trying to carry out its commands. The Scriptures show that before the world can receive its share of blessings, the Church of Christ must first be gathered and changed to spirit beings by the First Resurrection.

After this has been accomplished, mankind will receive earthly blessings through the Messianic Kingdom. These will surpass anything which humanity has ever dreamed.

Opening the Blinded Eyes.

Then he showed that Jesus' miracles were merely illustrations of the work of His Second Advent. During the Millennium our Lord and His Church will remove, not only physical blindness, deafness, lameness, etc., but also human weaknesses and frailties resulting from the fall of Adam. What a new aspect earth will present when sin, sickness, sorrow and death will forever have passed away.

"A Highway Shall Be There."

The context mentions a Highway of Holiness to be established. This will distinctly differ from the broad road and the narrow way. Everything will be removed that will hinder human progress back to perfection.

The reward at the end of the way will be very different from that given to those who now walk the narrow way of self-sacrifice. Adam was a man, not a heavenly being. God changes not. He made Adam king over earth, with dominion over its creatures. God's purposes are the same to-day as in the beginning.

Christ died to redeem humanity. In due time, all will awake from the sleep of death to an opportunity to return to perfection as human beings.

sale amounted to 1300 cattle, 1400 sheep and lambs, 1600 hogs and 200 calves.

Altho the supply of cattle was somewhat larger than a week ago, a firmer feeling prevailed in the market. This was attributed to the increased demand from local butchers, packers and outside buyers, owing to the much colder weather and the fact that they were all short of beef. Consequently a good trade was done and the market was fairly active. Really choice steers were rather scarce, for which the demand was good, and sales of pickled lots were made at $7 to $7.25, while a few odd loads changed hands at $6.75 to $6.85, and good cattle at $6.25 to $6.50 per 100 pounds. Choice butchers' cows were also in demand, and sales of full loads were made at $5.50, and pickled lots at $5.55 to $6 per 100 pounds.

A feature of the small-meat trade was the strong undertone to the market for lambs, in spite of the fact that supplies were much larger than a week ago, and prices advanced 25c per 100 pounds. The demand was active, and sales were made at $7.25 to $7.50 per 100 pounds. One lot of 500 head was bought at $6.75 for shipment to Toronto. There was no change in sheep, with sales of ewes at $5 to $5.25 per 100 pounds. The trade in calves was fair at steady prices.

Hogs continue strong, and prices have scored a further advance of 15c to 25c per 100 pounds, which is due to the short supplies coming forward and the keen demand from packers. Sales of selected lots were made at $9.25 to $9.50 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars.

BARR AND LODORE.

The Celebrated Falls Were Scarcely What He Expected.

Many good stories have been told by and about the late Robert Barr, one of the most prolific writers ever born in Canada; more versatile than Sir Gilbert Parker, who, like Barr, also left Canada as soon as he became famous, to live in England. Barr was a famous character in the Western Ontario Peninsula. It was there, while school-teaching in Windsor, that he got his entree into public print in "A Rough Ride Round the Lakes," a series of sketches in The Detroit Free Press, depicting Barr's rollicking experiences on a summer vacation on the northern lakes. For years afterwards Barr was a regular contributor to The Free Press. He was a close friend of Dr. James Samson, now of Windsor, who has often told the story which Barr told him and which Barr told about himself at the dinner given to Premier McBride in London in 1907. R. E. Gosnell, another old Kent County boy, now proprietor of The Victoria Times, tells the story in a recent issue of his paper, and it runs as follows:

"He had read in his school books about the cataract of Lodore, and readers will remember the description in Southey's well-known poem, a portion of which reads:

"And dashing and flashing and splashing
And so never ending, but always descending,
Sounds and motions forever and ever
are blending,
And at once and all o'er, with a mighty uproar—
And this way the water comes down
at Lodore."

Then and there he made up his mind that when he was old enough and had money enough he would go to England and see the waters that had so excited the poet's admiration. "They are falls," he mentally cogitated. "Well," added the humorist, "I did grow old enough and did get money and I took the first opportunity thereafter to gratify my ambition. Upon arriving in London I took the next train for Cumberland and a ticket for the nearest station, and as I handed my bag to a clerk at the inn to which I had been directed, I asked breathlessly, 'Where are the falls of Lodore?' 'If you take the road, sir, and follow that stream for a bit, five or six miles, sir, you will come to them, sir,' he replied. It was a warm, muggy afternoon in August and I started out to walk. After walking for what appeared to be an interminable distance, I was hot, sweaty, tired and footsore. Taking off my boots and socks, and rolling up my trousers, as I used to do long ago, I decided to wade into the stream and ease my aching feet. Just ahead of me was a rock in midstream with a swirl of water about it, and I went forward to rest myself and wait for some passer-by who could give me definite and quieting information on the subject of my quest. Presently a pedestrian, one of the farm laborer class, hove in sight, and when near enough I megaphoned to him: 'Can you tell me where are the falls of Lodore?' In blank, stupid amazement, he gazed at me and finally recovering his wits, he shouted back, 'You fool; you are sitting on them!'"

NOTABLE SURRENDERS

SCENES WHICH STAND OUT IN THE ANNALS OF WAR.

The Meeting of the Victor and the Vanquished Is a Dramatic Moment and Has Been Marked by Episodes Which Show the Calibre of the Great Warriors—Napoleon Surrendered In State.

In the story of war there is no chapter more thrilling than that which tells how, a generation ago, a comparative handful of Turks held the village of Plevna for five months against a quarter of a million of Russia's picked soldiery.

Again and again the Muscovites hurled themselves against Osman Digna's trenches and redoubts, to be swept back again and again, leaving thousands of slain behind them. And it was only when hunger and disease had this band of heroes in their grip that the gallant Turkish leader made his desperate and historic effort to beat his way through the enemy's lines—a "forlorn hope" which ended, as it was bound to end, in failure.

But not until the Turks were surrounded by the Muscovites in overwhelming numbers and Osman himself was seriously wounded, did the white flag at last give the signal of surrender. When, later, the vanquished hero was led before the Russian Czar, carrying himself as proudly in defeat as in victory, Alexander, with a cordial hand-grip, gave him this generous greeting: "Sir, I congratulate you on your fine defence. It was one of the most splendid feats in the history of war."

It was with still a bolder front that Mahmud met his conqueror, after his dervish army had been wiped out of existence on the banks of the Atbara River. When, his hands tied behind his back, he was conducted into the presence of the Sirdar, it was with his head carried high and a mien of defiance. "Are you Mahmud?" asked the Sirdar. "Yes," was the answer; "and I am the same as you." "Why did you come to make war here?" "I came," answered Mahmud, proudly, "because like you, I was told to come."

For five months, in 1855, the Turks under General Williams, held the mountain fortress of Kars against a Russian army more than three times their number; and only when food and ammunition both were exhausted, and further defence became hopeless, did the brave English leader even think of surrender. Then it was that the Russian General, Mouravieff, wrote to him one of the most generous messages ever sent to a defeated enemy. "General Williams," he wrote, "you have made yourself a name in history; and posterity will stand amazed at the endurance, the courage, the discipline which this siege has called forth in the remains of an army. Let us arrange a capitulation which will satisfy the demands of war without disgracing humanity."

When General Cronje, after his brave fight on the bank of the Modder River, was compelled to surrender to Lord Roberts, with 4,000 of his army the bitterness, as he afterwards said, was taken out of his humiliation by the gracious words addressed to him by his victor, who, with a warm hand-clasp, said to him: "Commandant Cronje, you have indeed made a gallant defence, which will win the admiration of the world."

The first Napoleon, after the crowning disaster of Waterloo, finding escape from France impossible, surrendered to Captain Maitland, of the Bellerophon, on July 15th, 1815. As he stepped on board, his breast ablaze with decorations, and escorted by an imposing retinue of officers and servants, it was almost with the air of a conqueror that he addressed the captain: "Sir, I come to place myself under the protection of your King and your laws."

Much more abject was the downfall of his successor, the third Napoleon, that September day in 1870, when he was compelled to resign both crown and sword. Surrounded in Sedan by an overwhelming host of the enemy, 50,000 of his men dead or taken prisoners, his army demoralized under a deluge of death from five hundred guns, he realized that the end had come. Then, with the white flag of defeat fluttering over his citadel, he wrote to the Prussian King this pathetic note: "Brother,—Not able to die at the head of my troops. I place my sword at your Majesty's feet.—Napoleon."

But France was not yet beaten. Marshall Bazaine still had a large army under his command; but he, too, was in a perilous plight, for he was shut up in Metz, by a German force as great as his own. When sortie after sortie was repulsed with heavy loss and he realized that escape was impossible, he tried to save his army by surrendering Metz. But to his overtures Bismark returned the haughty answer, "I occupy France with more than a million men, and I make no peace with a marshal. The surrender must be unconditional."

And on October 27th Bazaine capitulated, and three marshals, 600 officers, and 173,000 men laid down their arms and became prisoners of war. For Bazaine a worse fate was reserved; for he was later tried by court-martial and sentenced to degradation and death—a sentence which was commuted to one of twenty years' imprisonment.

Economical to the Last.

There was once a Scotsman who was down in the world without hope, with only threepence in his pocket. He decided on suicide and, entering a chemist's shop, asked for threepennyworth of arsenic. "What do you want it for?" demanded the chemist. "Twopence," said the Scotsman.

UNDER MR. ROWELL'S LEADERSHIP

There is abundant evidence to show that the Ontario Liberals made no mistake in selecting Mr. N. W. Rowell as their leader. Besides proving himself a competent Parliamentarian he has established a reputation as a skillful and popular platform speaker. But more than these equipments is necessary to early and permanent success in the leadership of a Liberal party: a systematic and educative propaganda, carried on not merely spasmodically during an election campaign, but continuously during the whole Parliamentary term between elections.

There has just appeared from the press, under the imprint of the Ontario Reform Association, a pamphlet containing a full and well-edited report of Mr. Rowell's closing speech in the Budget debate of the session of 1912. This brochure should be in the hands of as many electors, irrespective of the party complexion, as can be induced to accept and read it, for it gives an admirable account of the trend of public affairs during the Whitney regime. The speech is not a mere review of the financial condition of the Province, though it contains one: it deals besides with many other topics, such as the unsatisfactory condition of education, the bilingual school problem, the decadence of agriculture, the inertia of the Crown lands administration in the colonization of new territory and the construction of colonization roads, the taxation of railway property, and so on. In fact it is a comprehensive review of the state of the Province, lucid in style, moderate in tone, and statesmanlike in grasp.

A QUAINT PHILOSOPHER.

He Deftly Turned His Little Faults
Into Real Virtues.

In August Strindberg's "Easter (a play) and Stories," translated from the Swedish by Velma Swanston Howard, is a quaint bit of conscience easing reasoning by a matter of fact philosophical photographer. He had a partner, who posed as a real, a faultless, philosopher. But this matter of fact chap was "full of little eccentricities. For instance, he smoked tobacco all day long; he could never learn to close a door after him; he stuck the knife into his mouth instead of the fork; he went about in the house with his hat on; he manicured his nails in the middle of the atelier, and at night he had to have three mugs of ale. He was full of faults."

To his faultless partner the matter of fact one thus justified his short-

NOISES OF PEKING.

Hiddeous Din Raised by the Venders
That Throng the Streets.

An analysis of the street noises of Peking has been made by the correspondent of a western American newspaper and ought to be useful when the anti-noise crusade reaches the orient. The great cause of confusion he finds is the various street venders, each of whom is armed with a noise producing instrument by which he proclaims his trade.

The barber has two prongs of steel through which he draws a spike and thus makes a loud whir. The seller of sweetmeats holds in his right hand two brass cups which he jangles together. The buyer of old clothes taps a small drum with a bit of tarred bamboo, getting by this combination a plunk, plunk that attracts trade. The man who has wicker baskets to sell beats half a gourd with a drumstick, the clothes seller swings a drum which has two bits of metal attached to it by strings, the toy dealer strikes a brass gong of a peculiarly penetrating tone, the knife grinder claps three blocks of iron together, and the seller of charcoal announces his coming by a repeated tap, tap on a block of wood.

The watchman manages to introduce a little variety. He is armed with a wooden drum, which he taps in different measures to mark the different hours of the night. The sound of his drum, however, carries no certain assurance. On the night when Peking was looted you would not have known from him that anything was wrong. In the intervals of the rifle fire the sound of his drum rose undismayed, signaling in superb nonchalance the exciting hours.

The fact is that he is not on duty to catch thieves or even to scare them off, as are some of the Japanese watchmen. His function is nobler. The sound of his drum frightens away the spirits of evil, without whose presence no self respecting thief can hope to pull off a successful job.

There is a cross eyed man in Cleveland who is an enthusiastic trap shooter; furthermore, he is an expert. His record is a thing to be proud of. One day last autumn a nervy friend ventured to question him thus:

"Courts of love" were established in the middle ages, when chivalry was at its height and love the serious occupation of life among the higher class of society. The first "court of love" was established in the south of France in the twelfth century and was composed of knights, poets and ladies, and their decisions on subtle questions connected with affairs of the heart were given with great formality.

MARRIAGE LICENSES

The Woman In the Alcove

By ANNA KATHARINE GREEN,

Author of "The Millionaire Baby," "The Fillgree Ball," "The House in the Mist," "The Amethyst Box," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1906, THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY.

This seemed to be very unjust. What if no other clew offered—no other clew, I mean, recognized as such by police or public! Was he not to have the benefit of whatever threw a doubt on his own culpability? For instance, that splash of blood on his shirt front, which I had seen and the shape of which I knew. Why did not the fact that it was a splash and not a spatter (and spatter it would have been had it spurted there, instead of falling from above, as he stated) count for more in the minds of those whose business it was to probe into the very heart of this crime? To me, it told such a tale of innocence that I wondered how a man like the inspector could pass over it. But later I understood. A single word enlightened me. The stain, it was true, was in the form of a splash and not a spurt, but a splash would have been the result of a drop falling from the reeking end of the stiletto, whether it dislodged itself early or late. And what was there to prove that this drop had not fallen at the instant the stiletto was being thrust into the lantern, instead of after the escape of the criminal, and the entrance of another man?

But the mystery of the broken coffee cups! For that no explanation seemed to be forthcoming.

And still the unsolved one of the written warning found in the murdered woman's hand—a warning which had been deciphered to read: "Be warned! He means to be at the ball! Expect trouble if"—Was that to be looked upon as directed against a man who, from the nature of his projected attempt, would take no one into his confidence?

Then the stiletto, a photographic reproduction of which was in all the papers, was that the kind of instrument which a plain New York gentleman would be likely to use in a crime of this nature? It was a marked and unique article, capable, as one would think, of being easily traced to its owner. Had it been claimed by Mr. Ramsdell, had it been recognized as one of the many works of art scattered about the highly decorated alcove, its employment as a means of death would have gone only to prove the possibly unpremeditated nature of the crime, and so been valueless as the basis of an argument in favor of Mr. Durand's innocence. But Mr. Ramsdell had disclaimed from the first all knowledge of it; consequently one could but feel justified in asking whether a man of Mr. Durand's judgment would choose such an extraordinary weapon in meditating so startling a crime—a crime which from its nature and circumstance could not fail to attract the attention of the whole civilized world.

ceded fact that this substitution had been made prior to the ball and with Mrs. Fairbrother's full cognizance. The effectual way in which she had wielded her fan between the glittering ornament on her breast and the inquisitive glances constantly leveled upon it might at the time have been due to coquetry, but to them it looked much more like an expression of fear lest the deception in which she was indulging should be discovered. No one fixed the time where I did; but, then, no one but myself had watched the scene with the eyes of love. Besides—and this must be remembered—most people, among whom I ventured to count the police officials, were mainly interested in proving Mr. Durand guilty, while I with contrary mind was bent on establishing such facts as confirmed the explanations he had been pleased to give us, explanations which necessitated a conviction on Mrs. Fairbrother's part of the great value of the jewel she wore and the consequent advisability of ridding herself of it temporarily if, as so many believed, the full letter of the warning should read: "Be warned. He means to be at the ball. Expect trouble if you are found wearing the great diamond."

True, she may herself have been deceived concerning it. Unconsciously to herself she may have been the victim of a daring fraud on the part of some hanger on who had access to her jewels, but as no such evidence had yet come to life, as she had no recognized or, so far as could be learned, secret lover or dishonest dependent and, moreover, as no gem of such unusual value was known to have been offered within the year here or abroad, in public or private market, I could not bring myself to credit this assumption, possibly because I was so ignorant as to credit another and a different one—one which you have already seen growing in my mind and which, presumptuous as it was, kept my courage from failing through all those dreadful days of enforced waiting and suspense. For I was determined not to intrude my suggestions, valuable as I considered them, till all hope was gone of his being righted by the judgment of those who would not lightly endure the interference of such an insignificant note in the great scheme of justice as myself.

The inquest, which might be trusted to bring out all these doubtful points, had been delayed in anticipation of Mr. Fairbrother's return. His testimony could not but prove valuable, if not in fixing the criminal, at least in settling the moot point as to whether the stone which the estranged wife had carried away with her on leaving the house had been the genuine one

I thought I was equipped all right as it was, but I said nothing and went on to the livery stable. Here I was shown a horse which I took to at once and was about to mount when a pair of leggings was brought to me.

"You will need these for your journey," said the man.

"Journey!" I repeated. "Fifteen miles!"

The livery stable keeper, a half breed with a peculiarly pleasant smile, cocked up his shoulders with the remark:

"Three men as willing, but as inexperienced as yourself, have attempted the same journey during the last week, and they all came back before they reached the divide. You will probably come back, too, but I shall give you as fair a start as if I knew you were going straight through."

"But a woman has done it," said I; "a nurse from the hospital went up that very road last week."

"Oh, women, they can do anything—women who are nurses! But they don't start off alone. You are going alone."

"Yes," I remarked grimly. "Newspaper correspondents make their journeys singly when they can."

"Oh, you are a newspaper correspondent! Why do so many men from the papers want to see that sick old man? Because he's so rich?"

"Don't you know?" I asked.

He did not seem to.

I wondered at his ignorance, but did not enlighten him.

"Follow the trail and ask your way from time to time. All the goatherds know where the Placide mine is."

Such were his simple instructions as he headed my horse toward the canyon. But as I drew off he shouted out:

"If you get stuck, leave it to the horse. He knows more about it than you do."

With a vague gesture toward the northwest, he turned away, leaving me in contemplation of the grandest scenery I had yet come upon in all my travels.

Fifteen miles! But those miles lay through the very heart of the mountains, ranging anywhere from 6,000 to 7,000 feet high. In ten minutes the city and all signs of city life were out of sight. In five more I was seemingly as far removed from all civilization as if I had gone a hundred miles into the wilderness.

As my horse settled down to work, picking his way now here and now there, sometimes over the brown earth, hard and baked as in a thousand furnaces, and sometimes over the stunted grass whose needlelike stalks seemed never to have known moisture, I let my eyes roam to such peaks as were not cut off from view by the nearer hillsides and wondered whether the snow which capped them was whiter than any other or the blue of the sky bluer, that the two together had the effect upon me of cameo work on a huge and unapproachable scale.

Certainly the effect of these grand mountains, into which you leap without any preparation from the streets and market places of America's oldest city, is such as is not easily described.

We struck water now and then—narrow watercourses, which my horse followed to midstream, and more inter-

"I have my own errand. I am a representative of the New York —, and will not deny me a word of airbrother." I sturdily I hardly knew how to take my horse by the rein on a few steps toward the tent where he motioned me. Then he laid his hand on my arm, forcing me to meet him. "I made this journey—I be- lieved from New York—to see you. Why?" Mr. Fairbrother is at present sought for, man in America, bold. The grim doctor's eyes flashed angrily, and I stopped.

"Were you a detective from the district attorney's office in New York sent on with special powers to examine him? I should still say what I am going to say now. While Mr. Fairbrother's temper and pulse remain where they now are no one shall see him and no one shall talk to him save myself and his nurse."

I turned with a sick look of disappointment toward the road up which I had so lately come.

"Have I panted, sweltered, trembled for three mortal hours on the worst trail a man ever traversed to go back with nothing for my journey? That seems to me hard lines. Where is the manager of this mine?"

The doctor pointed toward a man bending over the edge of the great hole from which at that moment a line of Mexicans was issuing, each with a sack on his back, which he flung down before what looked like a furnace built of clay.

"That's he, Mr. Haines of Philadelphia. What do you want of him?"

"Permission to stay the night. Mr. Fairbrother may be better tomorrow."

"I won't allow it, and I am master here so far as my patient is concerned. You couldn't stay here without talking, and talking makes excitement, and excitement is just what he cannot stand. A week from now I will see about it—that is, if my patient continues to improve. I am not sure that he will."

"Let me spend that week here. I'll not talk any more than the dead. Maybe the manager will let me carry sacks."

"Look here," said the doctor, edging me farther and farther away from the tent he hardly let out of his sight for a moment. "You're a canny lad and shall have your bite and something to drink before you take your way back. But back you go before sunset and with this message: No man from any paper north or south will be received here till I hang out a blue flag. I say blue, for that is the color of my bandanna. When my patient is in a condition to discuss murder, I'll hoist it from his tent top. It can be seen from the divide, and if you want to camp there on the lookout well and good. As for the police, that's another matter. I will see them if they come, but they need not expect to talk to my patient. You may say so down there. It will save scrambling up this trail to no purpose."

"You may count on me," said I. "Trust a New York correspondent to do the right thing at the right time to head off the boys. But I doubt if they will believe me."

"In that case I shall have a barricade thrown up fifty feet down the mountain side," said he.

"But the mail and your supplies?"

"Oh, the burros can make their way up. We shan't suffer."

"You are certainly master," I remarked.

All this time I had been using my eyes. There was not much to see, but what there was was romantically interesting. Aside from the furnace and what was going on there, there was little else but a sleeping tent, a cooking tent and the small one I had come on first, which without the least doubt contained the sick man. This last tent was of a peculiar construction and showed the primitive nature of everything at this height. It consisted sim-been allowed to ask him one of the many questions burning on my tongue, I should have received only delirium for reply. There was no reaching that clouded intelligence now, and I felt grateful to the doctor for convincing me of it.

I told him so and thanked him quite warmly when we were well away from the tent, and his answer was almost kindly, though he made no effort to hide his impatience and anxiety to see me go. The looks he cast at the sun were significant, and having no wish to antagonize him and every wish to visit the spot again I moved toward my horse with the intention of untying him.

To my surprise the doctor held me back.

"You can't go tonight," said he. "Your horse has hurt himself."

It was true. There was something the matter with the animal's left fore foot. As the doctor lifted it the manager came up. He agreed with the doctor. I could not make the descent to Santa Fe on that horse that night. Did I feel elated? Rather. I had no wish to descend. Yet I was far from foreseeing what the night was to bring to me.

I was turned over to the manager, but not without a final injunction from the doctor. "Not a word to any one about your errand! Not a word about the New York tragedy, as you value Mr. Fairbrother's life!"

"Not a word," said I.

Then he left me.

To see the sun go down and the moon come up from a ledge hung, as it were, in mid air! The experience was novel—but I refrain. I have more important matters to relate.

I was given a bunk at the extreme end of the long sleeping tent and turned in with the rest. I expected to sleep, but on finding that I could catch a sight of the sick tent from under the canvas I experienced such fascination in watching this forbidden spot that midnight came before I had closed my eyes. Then all desire to sleep left me, for the patient began to moan and presently to talk, and the stillness of the solitary height being something abnormal I could sometimes catch the very words. Devoid as they were of all ra-it was very dark where I lay, and his back had been turned toward me. As for the others, they slept like the dead, only they made more noise.

Interested—everything is interesting at such a height. I brought my eye to bear on the ledge and soon saw by the limpid light of a full moon the stiff, short branches of the trees, on which my gaze was fixed, gave way to an advancing horse and rider.

"Hello!" shouted the doctor in a whisper which was in itself a warning. "Easy there! We have sickness in this camp, and it's a late hour for visitors."

"I know."

The answer was subdued, but earnest.

"I'm the magistrate of this district. I've a question to ask this sick man on behalf of the New York chief of police, who is a personal friend of mine. It is connected with"—

"Hush!"

The doctor had seized him by the arm and turned his face away from the sick tent. Then the two heads came together, and an argument began.

I could not hear a word of it, but their motions were eloquent. My sympathy was with the magistrate, of course, and I watched eagerly while he passed a letter over to the doctor, who vainly strove to read it by the light of the moon. Finding this impossible, he was about to return it when the other struck a match and lit a lantern hanging from the horn of his saddle. The two heads came together again, but as quickly separated, with every appearance of irreconcilable, and I was settling back with sensations of great disappointment when a sound fell on the night so unexpected to all concerned that with a common impulse each eye sought the sick tent.

"Water! Will some one give me water?" a voice had cried quietly, with none of the delirium which had hitherto rendered it unnatural.

The doctor started for the tent. There was the quickness of surprise in his movement, and the gesture he made to the magistrate as he passed in re-awakened an expectation in my breast which made me doubly watchful.

Providence was intervening in our favor, and I was not surprised to see him presently reissue with the nurse, whom he drew into the shadow of the trees, where they had a short conference. If she returned alone into the tent after this conference I should know that the matter was at an end and that the doctor had decided to maintain his authority against that of the magistrate. But she remained outside, and the magistrate was invited to join their council. When they again left the shadow of the trees it was to approach the tent.

The magistrate, who was in the rear, could not have more than passed the opening, but I thought him far enough inside not to detect any movement on my part, so I took advantage of the situation to worm myself out of my corner and across the ledge to where the tent made a shadow in the moonlight.

Crouching close and laying my ear against the canvas, I listened.

The nurse was speaking in a gently persuasive tone. I imagined her kneeling by the head of the patient and breathing words into his ear. These were what I heard:

ing them and the small one I had come on first, which without the least doubt contained the sick man. This last tent was of a peculiar construction and showed the primitive nature of everything at this height. It consisted simply of a cloth thrown over a thing like a trapeze. This cloth did not even come to the ground on either side, but stopped short a foot or so from the flat mound of adobe which serves as a base or floor for hut or tent in New Mexico. The rear of the simple tent abutted on the mountain side. The opening was toward the valley. I felt an intense desire to look into this opening—so intense that I thought I would venture on an attempt to gratify it.
Scrutinizing the resolute face of the man before me and flattering myself that I detected signs of humor underlying his professional brusqueness, I asked, somewhat mournfully, if he would let me go away without so much as a glance at the man I had come so far to see. "A glimpse would satisfy me now," I assured him as the hint of a twinkle flashed in his eye.
"Surely there will be no harm in that.
I'll take it instead of supper."

He smiled, but not encouragingly, and I was feeling very despondent indeed when the canvas on which our eyes were fixed suddenly shook, and the calm figure of a woman stepped out before us, clad in the simplest garb, but showing in every line of face and form a character of mingled kindness and shrewdness. She was evidently on the lookout for the doctor,
for she made a sign as she saw him
and returned instantly into the tent.

"Mr. Fairbrother has just fallen asleep," he explained. "It isn't discipline and I shall have to apologize to Miss Serra, but if you will promise not to speak nor make the least disturbance I will let you take the one peep you prefer to supper."

"I promise," said I.

Leading the way to the opening, he whispered a word to the nurse, then motioned me to look in. The sight was a simple one, but to me very impressive. The owner of palaces, a man to whom millions were as thousands to such poor devils as myself, lay on an improvised bed of evergreens, wrapped in a horse blanket and with nothing better than another of these rolled up under his head. At his side sat his nurse on what looked like the uneven stump of a tree. Close to her hand was a tolerably flat stone, on which I saw arranged a number of bottles and such other comforts as were absolutely necessary to a proper care of the sufferer.

That was all. In these few words I have told the whole story. To be sure, this simple tent, perched 7,000 feet and more above sea level, had one advantage which even his great house in New York could not offer. This was the outlook. Lying as he did facing the valley he had only to open his eyes to catch a full view of the panorama of sky and mountain stretched out before him. It was glorious; whether seen at morning, noon or night, glorious. But I doubt if he would not gladly have exchanged it for a sight of his home walls.

As I started to go a stir took place
in the blanket wrapped about his chin, and I caught a glimpse of the iron gray head and hollow cheeks of the great financier. He was a very sick man. Even I could see that. Had I obtained the permission I sought and tional meaning, they excited my curiosity to the burning point, for who could tell if he might not say something bearing on the mystery?

But that fevered mind had recurred to early scenes, and the babble which came to my ears was all of mining camps in the Rockies and the dicker of horses. Perhaps the uneasy movement of my horse pulling at the end of his tether had disturbed him. Perhaps—

But at the inner utterance of the second "perhaps" I found myself up on my elbow listening with all my ears and staring with wide stretched eyes at the thicket of stunted trees where the road debouched on the platform.
Something was astir there besides my horse. I could catch sounds of an unmistakable nature. A rider was coming up the trail.

Slipping back into my place, I turned toward the doctor, who lay some two or three bunks nearer the opening. He had started up, too, and in a moment was out of the tent. I do not think he had observed my action, for

Milk and Ministers.

Milk became a very important part of the food of families in the colonial days of the eighteenth century. In 1728 a discussion took place in the Boston newspapers as to the expense of keeping a family of "middling fig-

bread and milk for breakfast and sup-milk, of course, became more frequently used. Rev. Mr. Higginson in 1630

STILL UNCONQUERED.

Mount Robson Has Defied the Efforts of the Climbers.

It has been said that discovery and conquest form the very science of mountaineering, says Mabel Burkholder in Toronto Globe. That is why the attention of mountain-climbers the world over is turning to the Canadian Rockies. Switzerland assuredly possesses mountains infinite in variety and ideal in grandeur. But at each turn of the trail a wooden hand points out the beauty spots, and the most illiterate guide may know all there is to be known about the scenery. There are no virgin peaks to conquer, no unexpected lakes reward the adventurer with sudden flashes of emerald or turquoise. Two generations of climbers have tamed the Alps and harnessed them. So now-days, though the mountain-climber may take his first lessons in Switzerland, he afterwards goes abroad, and often ends up in that wild and most untamed of mountain districts—the Canadian Rockies.

Of all Canadian peaks Mount Robson at present provokes the most interest. No other is so grandly beautiful, so vexatiously inaccessible. It will doubtless be years before this monster is brought into thorough subjection to man. There is so much of interest around its base and up its slopes that the explorer stops there, content to examine its mineral wealth, its glaciers, its lakes, its sweeping torrents.

The general effect of the Yellow-head Pass, near which this mountain is situated, is one of great spaciousness. The valleys are low and broad, and the mountains rise abruptly to great heights, the peaks being un-from turquoise, and sapphire to emerald and topaz; the torrents, glacier-fed and frothing with madness—all is on a stupendously magnificent scale.

Six glaciers mingle their streams in Berg Lake alone. These range from a quarter of a mile to a full mile in width, and all day long huge chunks of ice come rattling down the mountainsides with a roar like thunder. They lodge in the lake like miniature icebergs, and do not easily melt, even in warm weather.

Heroic Dog Dead.

Although he saved the life of his master by his barking, Bert Russell's dog, "Nigger" is dead.

Fire which broke out in the basement of the Empire theatre, Edmonton, about half-past two the other morning, sent dense volumes of smoke upstairs into the front room where Manager Russell sleeps and the alert nose of the little dog was the first to detect the danger. His barks awoke Mr. Russell none too soon, for the whole building was filled with smoke and escape by the stairs was an impossibility.

While "Nigger" crawled under the bed to find his safety, Mr. Russell smashed the window and shouted for help. Two nearby policemen heard, and while one turned in the fire alarm, the other attempted ineffectually to relieve the perilous situation in which the manager of the theatre was placed.

The firemen's ladder finally gave him an opportunity to get to ground almost exhausted, but "Nigger" remained under the bed and his little body was found afterwards with life extinct.

Work of Labor Bureau.

The annual report of the Dominion Department of Labor notes an upward tendency in wages, attended by an increase in the cost of living.

The success of the Industrial Disputes Act is indicated in the fact that in five years 124 disputes, in which it was invoked, have arisen, and only in 14 cases did the conciliatory proceedings fail to prevent a strike. Last year there were 97 industrial disputes as against 94 in the year previous. Building trades predominated in those difficulties. The report explains and reviews at length the work of the Department, an important feature of which is the regular investigation and reports of wholesale prices in relation to the cost of living.

NAVAL GUN TELESCOPES.

Device That Made Possible Accurate Long Range Firing.

It was about the year 1885 that the telescope was first tested in conjunction with the firing of a modern gun. The tremendous concussion broke the lens, however, so that in order to use it at all the telescope had to be detached from the gun before firing, thereby entailing a loss of several seconds in time after aim had been taken.

Later, to obviate this defect, the telescope was adjusted to the axis of the gun by a system of parallel arms moving up and down in unison with the gun, though detached from it. This of course was a great improvement, but there were still grave practical defects.

Well, along in the early nineties Henry C. Mustin, a young midshipman at Annapolis, lean faced and square of jaw, built like a medium sized Hercules, quiet mannered, but a bulldog in the football field, interested himself in

THE PROPHET'S CHAMBER.

"Little Women" a Complete Success to Admirers of Miss Alcott's Book—All the Favorite Characters Live Again. Professor Proposes in Plumfield Orchard.

Dear Elsa—Dick and I have just come back from a delightful week end visit to a particularly charming young matron of our acquaintance who seems to have discovered the secrets of true hospitality, that virtue so rare in this bustling life of today.

I am going to tell the story of hospitality as it was told to me.

"When we were first married," said this young matron, "we didn't have a spare room at all. If people came to visit us we had to turn out of our room and camp on couches during the visit. But when we moved into a larger house I said to my husband:

"Do you remember the story of the woman who kept a room ready for a prophet so that he might come and go as he pleased without troubling any one? Her hospitality brought her good luck in time of trouble, and I think it would be rather nice if we had a prophet's chamber, too, a little room always ready for our friends."

"If our unique spare room has not brought us luck it has certainly enabled us to make a number of grateful and warm friends who can be trusted to stand by us in time of trouble.

"It's quite an ordinary little room, this prophet chamber of ours, with a single bed, a big chair which can be turned into a second bed if necessary, a washstand and a dressing table with a chest of drawers below it. These drawers are stocked with everything that we think our guests are likely to need, so that they need not mind coming without a bag.

"One side of the chest belongs to men visitors and the other to women.

"On the men's side I keep the following things:

"A pair of pajamas.
"A pair of loose slippers which will be comfortable to tired feet.

"Half a dozen collars of different sizes, so that any man will be able to fit himself with a clean one if he needs it in the morning.

"A razor and shaving soap.

"Clean handkerchiefs.

"On the side belonging to the women I keep:

"A nightgown.

"A thin woolen vest for those who like something warm under the gown.

"A dressing jacket and a dressing gown, a pair of bedroom slippers in the shape of 'mules.' These fit any one, because only the toes are slipped into them.

YOUR STREET SUITS

Rough Weaves For Every Broadcloth For Best Cost

The best materials to choose for street suits are rough diagonal weaves, two toned diagonal finishes in the higher priced models. The rough cloth and boucle cloth, like the smooth finish, appears to have remained in vogue, where it has been seen for three or four years. This fashion adopted from the men's using rough cloth, for women's smooth broadcloth shortly tailors gave it up for men's (

There are broadcloth gown market, but they are made in conservative styles they plainly are intended for women w content to examine its mineral wealth, its glaciers, its lakes, its sweeping torrents.

The general effect of the Yellow-head Pass, near which this mountain is situated, is one of great spaciousness. The valleys are low and broad, and the mountains rise abruptly to great heights, the views being unobstructed almost to their base.

Therefore to the traveler on the Grand Trunk Pacific over the Yellow-head Pass route the Robson Peak strikes the eye as a sudden wonder, a monstrous pile standing forth in glorious isolation. The railroad makes a hundred-mile circuit around its base, yet only when the road crosses the Grand Forks, a short and dashing tributary to the Fraser, born of Robson glaciers in the hills above—only then does the traveler see the mighty pyramid rising in a sheer face of over eleven thousand feet of rock. Mount Robson in all is 13,700 feet above the sea, and the valley is so low—only 2,700 feet—that practically the whole mountain lifts itself in the air.

The appearance Mount Robson presents from the Fraser Valley is a face of black rock, plainly marked off by horizontal ridges of snow. A cloud usually veils his august head. This is due to the fact that the peak catches all the moist winds from the Pacific, but it looks as if he disdained to show himself to the clamoring intruders who lately have invaded his eternal silence.

Concentrated within the sweep of vision from one of Robson's flanks are more beauty spots than those which have combined to make dear such names as Banff, Yoho, Field and Glacier. Its glaciers dipping their noses into the lakes; those lakes of exquisite color, rivaling all the gems but there were still grave practical defects.

Well, along in the early nineties Henry O. Mustin, a young midshipman at Annapolis, lean faced and square of jaw, built like a medium sized Hercules, quiet mannered, but a bulldog in the football field, interested himself in the study of optics. Naturally enough, his thoughts were directed to the defective lenses of the gun telescopes. The lenses broke when the guns were fired; therefore it was necessary to invent a nonbreakable lens.

One day years later, while stationed in Washington, Mustin called a few of his brother officers to the window near his desk on the second floor of a building in the navy yards. He showed them a lens with a metal band "shrunk" around its circumference. Then he opened the window and deliberately threw the lens with all his might upon the brick pavement below. The others knew of his pet hobby and thought he had given it up in disgust and had taken this way of telling them so. But he put on his hat, lit a cigarette and bade them follow him. He led them down the stairs amid considerable joking and out to the spot where the lens lay on the pavement. The glass was unbroken. The one great defect of the telescope sight had been overcome, and Mustin had made possible the long range gunnery of the modern navy. The thud of the little glass disk with its metal collar upon the brick pavement was the signal for the nations to begin to build their Dreadnoughts.—American Magazine.

because only the toes are slipped into them.

"A well stocked pincushion.
"A little pot of toilet cream.
"A bottle of eau de cologne.
"Waving pins and hairpins.
"The guests who visit us often have toothbrushes labeled with their names, but for the chance guest I always keep a supply of new brushes."

Now, isn't this a splendid idea? I have begun to get things together already for a prophet's room.

To talk of something else:

A very clever woman has dramatized "Little Women," and the play is having a great run here in New York. Miss Aldrich has made Jo and Meg, Amy and Beth, to say nothing of Laurie and the professor, Marmee and Aunt March such real characters to all of her readers that I, who was brought up on the book, was afraid the play would be disappointing. Quite the reverse was the case. It is charming, and even Jo's boots—the famous beloved old boots that "were given her by a friend who knew a lady who knew an actor"—these actual boots were loaned by John Olcott, a nephew of the author, who was one of Meg's twins.

The curtain rises on such a homely scene. Everything is right, from the geraniums blooming on the window sill to the old fashioned pictures and chairs, and, yes, there was Beth's doll cradle, looking as if it had been up in somebody's attic for fifty years, too precious to throw away, too "queer" for the children of today, who must have brass beds for their dolls.

There is Jo, of course. Where else could she be but lying on the floor in front of the fire, eating an apple, with her wonderful hair bundled into a net? "Christmas won't be Christmas without any presents"—the very words of the book. And a lump rose in my throat as I remembered the Christmas I found "Little Women" in my stocking, put there by father.

Then there was Laurie, not quite so handsome, I must acknowledge, as the hero of my dreams, but quite irresistible when you got to know him. He teased the girls and loved Marmee and paid special attention to Jo, and, oh, dear, if he didn't propose to her again! That dreadful scene! If Louisa Alcott knew how many girls have wept and wept over that chapter! When Beth dies there is not a dry eye in the house. And then come Jo and her professor. Those of us who can forgive Jo for deserting her "boy" in the book have to fight all over again, for the professor is fat and has not a sense of humor like Laurie. The professor's proposal in the play takes place in the orchard at Plumfield, for it would be impossible to have a rainstorm on the stage. But it's all just wonderful, and you must come to town to see it and yours devotedly, MABEL.

BEFORE TREATMENT

Peter E. Summers relates his experience:

"I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I lay it to indiscretion and excesses in youth. I became very despondent and didn't care whether I worked or not. I imagined everybody who looked at me guessed my secret. Imaginative dreams at night, weakened me—my back ached, had pains in the back of my head, hands and feet were cold, tired in the morning, poor appetite, fingers were shaky, eyes blurred, hair loose, memory poor, etc. Numbness in the fingers set in and the doctor told me he feared paralysis. I took all kinds of medicines and tried many first-class physicians, wore an electric belt for three months, but received little benefit. I was induced to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, though I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I commenced the New Method Treatment and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—I could feel the vigor going through the nerves. I was cured mentally and physically. I have sent them many patients and continue to do so.

WASH DAY HINTS.

Time and Labor Saved by Using Toy Express Wagon.

Time and labor can be saved on wash days if you are fortunate enough to have an old express wagon about the house that has belonged to one of the children. Knock the sides off the top part and when the basket has been filled with clothes ready for the line put it on the wagon and draw it around with you as you hang out the wet garments.

You will be able easily to handle a large basketful of clothes and will not suffer from the tiresome stooping over every time you have to pick up a garment. The wagon comes in handy when removing the dried clothes from the line also.

If skirts are hung up by the belt instead of the hem, as is generally done, they will dry evenly and will not pull out of shape, besides being much easier to iron.

When washing thin white or colored shirt waists do not starch them.

After they are dry dip them in hot water and roll up tightly in a thick towel for half an hour. Then iron on the wrong side and they will look like new.

When ironing table linen always put it on the ironing blanket or board so that the iron can be pushed the same way as the design is woven in the cloth. By ironing with the grain of the material you will get a much higher polish.

A convenient ironing blanket for embroideries and laces can be made at home by sewing together several thicknesses of outing flannel and a double thickness of turkish toweling. The turkish side is used for laces. The loose threads are forced up through the lace when ironing. The other side is used for the embroidery.

Small pieces, such as collars, jabots, handkerchiefs and belts, are conveniently handled on wash day if they are first placed in a bag of mosquito netting before putting them in the boiler. They can then be lifted out without any trouble of fishing around with the stick and will all be kept together.

If you do not happen to own a sleeve board, when ironing a shirt waist or, in fact, any sleeve, roll up a piece of muslin—an old sheet will do nicely—and place it inside the sleeve.

Separate the yolks from the whites of three eggs, add to the yolks two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, one cupful of milk, pinch of salt, four tablespoonfuls of sugar and two cupfuls of sifted flour. Beat until smooth, then add three level teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one teaspoonful of vanilla extract and fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs. Pour into a well greased baking dish, cover with whole stoned dates and bake in a hot oven for half an hour. Serve hot with sweet sauce flavored with vanilla extract or with cream.

Sets of Glass.

Drinking glasses and tumblers are an endless necessity in any home, and when they have to be purchased in a fairly large quantity it is good to know where one can procure an inexpensive pattern which at the same time is not utterly commonplace. Brides who just at this season are furnishing their new homes find this particularly true. A very excellent set of glass, which may be had in every piece from goblets to finger bowls, is in optical effect, which is so very dainty. The set is named for a famous New York hotel, and the tumblers cost but $1.35 a dozen. The other pieces of the set are in proportionate cost. It is by far the best bargain in glass which has been shown this season.

For the Kitchen Sink.

A convenience for the kitchen sink, to which for some reason it is impossible to attach a soap bracket, is a new bracket of nickel which has a ring that fits over the top of the faucet. This soap bracket may be bought for 12 cents.

The Difference.

"What's a man's idea of a quick lunch?"

"How?"

"You know how he feels toward Jones?"

"I know he has owed him a grudge for years."

"Well, he made a match between Jones and Mrs. Wells' mother."

Longer Lasting.

"Making any footprints on the sands of time?"

"Oh, something more imperishable than that."

"Indeed!"

"Yes. I walked on a cement sidewalk today before it had hardened."

They Knew It.

"I don't understand how the establishment runs with such a head."

"What's the matter with him?"

"Everybody in the place knows more than the boss."

"How do you know?"

"I have talked with them."

He Preferred Chocolate.

"Mellisse must have been off with the old love and on with the new."

"What makes you think so?"

"She makes chocolate cake now all the time instead of devil's food, as of yore."

Unnecessary Instructions.

"Now, Tommy," said his mother, giving her final instructions before he left for the party, "remember, if you're asked to have something you want you must say, 'Yes, thank you,' and if you don't want it—"

Tommy raised his hand. "That's all right, ma," he said; "you needn't bother about that part of it."

No Place Like It.

There's no place like home, said the poet, Or some such expression as that, But that was, I feel very certain, Before they invented the flat, Before every corner and crossroad Along on each side of the street Had stores that were open on Sundays With goods that were ready to eat.

The home that the poet had pictured, That had in his mind such a charm, Was some little cot in the village Or some roomy house on the farm, With vines running over the doorway, With porches both shady and wide, A lawn and some trees and a garden And old fashioned eating inside.

His mind didn't hanker for dwellings With walls that were bare and severe Up three flights of stairways and maybe A few darkened rooms in the rear, Just room for a very small woman If wed to a very small man And, waiting him there on the table, A dinner that came in a can.

There's no place like home, said the poet. Some modern men say so as well, For after they've tried it a season They quite often seek a hotel. The yearning for home and for mother— What sticks in the memory like that? But will the old man of the future Revert to the two by four flat?

Not Impossible.

"Herbert is going to marry that Miss Kolege."

"Is that so?"

"Yes."

"She's a university girl, isn't she?"

"Yes, but perhaps he can forgive her."

Tolerated Him.

"Who is that beautiful woman?"

"That is Mrs. Jenks, the great society leader."

"And who is the man she spoke to so condescendingly?"

"Oh, that's only the merchant she owes for her fall outfit."

Was It Intentional?

"I believe Brown is next door to a lunatic."

"How dare you?"

"Don't you think so? Do you know him?"

"Know him? I live next door to him!"

Thought It For the Occasion.

"I told the boss what I thought of him this morning."

"Did he fire you?"

"Not much. You should have heard the nice things I thought for the occasion."

Ahead That Much.

"I like to pay cash for what I buy."

"And I like to run a bill."

"What is the advantage in that?"

"Sometimes I can outrun it."

HOLLOW POTATOES.

During the past season there have been a good many complaints from potato grower that, although the yield has been good, many of the largest and finest tubers are found, on cutting, to be hollow. This is an occurrence which is not uncommon in seasons which have favoured the rapid growth of the tuber, and for a similar reason it is found more commonly in large tubers than in those of small or medium size. A potato grows by the addition of new layers of tissue slightly below the skin. The cells composing this tissue are at first small but rapidly expand to their full growth of the tuber, and for a similar reason it is found more commonly in large tubers than in those of small or medium size. A potato grows by the addition of new layers of tissue slightly below the skin. The cells composing this tissue are at first small but rapidly expand to their full size, and in so doing set up a state of tension. The layers of cells towards the outside, being young, are capable of dividing and expanding in a similar way so that an external cracking or splitting is avoided. It is different, however, with the tissue in the interior. This is composed of mature cells no longer in a state of growth, and if the tension becomes too great a tearing or rupture of the tissue will result, followed by degeneration and the formation of a cavity. Cavities of this nature are much less serious than injuries on the outside of the tubers, since the latter permit of the entrance of numerous organisms of various kinds which cause rotting. They do, however, necessitate increased trouble in preparing potatoes for the table since the discoloured surface of the cavity must be cut away. Hollow potatoes are also particularly objectionable for baking. However, the factor of rapid growth which is liable to bring about this condition is in the main one necessary to the securing of a large yield, and most farmers will probably prefer to so stimulate growth by cultivation and fertilizers as to attain this end and take the risk of a certain proportion of tubers becoming hollow.

According to the Wh Tiding for January some have adopted some rather ways of enforcing the drunkenness. In Denma told, "a man found dr authorities is placed in taken to the police station by a doctor and then sent cab. The next day a b doctor and the cab is s publican who served the v h's last drink." This looks somewhere near the root c and we should judge, would fewer cases of drunkenness parts of China, "the Tiding law against illegal selling severe. In the city of "dry" for four hundred man who breaks the law : sale of liquor is whippe market place, and a man's sufficient evidence to convict offence is punished wit Without advising Loc Municipalities in Ontario t mode of punishment, one f to propose that the san evidence be accepted as p infringement of the law cesses it would prove a strong piece of evidence.

NAPANEE PUBLIC LIBRARY ANNUAL MEETING.

The Annual Meeting of the Napanee Public Library was held according to Statute on Monday evening, Jan. 13th. The meeting was called to order by the President, Mr. W. S. Herrington, K. C., and after the reading and approval of the minutes, the Secretary-Treasurer read his Annual Report which was approved and ordered filed. The Report shows the Library to be in good financial condition with a slight falling off in membership.

The next business was the election of Directors which resulted as follows: Directors for 1913, W. S. Herrington, R. A. Leonard, F. F. Miller, J. W. Robinson, W. P. Deroche, U. J. Flach and C. M. Warner.

After the adjournment of the meeting the Board of Directors met and organized for the year. W. S. Herrington was re-elected Chairman, and C. M. Warner, Secretary-Treasurer. The Reading Committee for the year was elected and the following are the members: Mrs. F. S. Richardson, Mrs. D. J. Hogan, Miss Lineau, Mrs. G. C. T. Ward, R. G. H. Travers, T. C. Tice and the members of the Board.

Considerable discussion was had with regard to the question of extending the stack room of the Library and it was decided to make temporary arrangements for the accommodation of new books.

There being no further business the meeting adjourned.

It is unfortunate that the people of Napanee do not take more interest in the management and the affairs of the Library. The meeting above reported was advertised for two weeks and a good majority of the subscribers to the Library should have been in attendance and should have taken an interest in the work. In place of this four people were on hand when the meeting opened. Napanee has one of the best Libraries, for a town of its size, in Ontario and the citizens should take an interest in every detail of the management and at all times make recommendations for improvement.

Much Sickness Due to Bowel Disorders

Two Poor Ones.

During one of Edwin Forrest's engagements in Boston a poor artist called several times to see the great actor at the old Winthrop House. Each time he brought a picture which he had painted. He finally left it with a note stating that he was in needy circumstances. Forrest read the note and took the wrapping from the picture. It proved to be a painting of himself as Spartacus. Forrest gazed upon it a moment and then ejaculated to the clerk: "Give him $10. If he is as poor as his picture he must be on the point of starvation."

The Two Garricks.

George Garrick, brother of the celebrated David, was the latter's most devoted slave and laborious pack horse. On coming behind the scene he usually inquired, "Has David wanted me?" It being asked once how George came to die so soon after the demise of his famous brother, a wag replied, "David wanted him."
